With the demand for modern apartments steadily on the increase throughout the beach district, plans are being considered by Mr. and Mrs. Sam Goldberg for the construction of a two-story stucco apartment house on the 50-ft. lot adjoining their home on Voltaire street, between Bacon and Cable streets. Mr. Goldberg is a well known contractor who recently completed construction of the Mace apartments and store building on Bacon street. He has been busy of late arranging for the manufacture and marketing of a table utility invented by Mr. Emil Mace in the nature of a safety pepper and salt shaker. Mr. Goldberg has returned from a business trip to Los Angeles and is considering plans for the new apartment house to be built probably within a month or so.

STRAND THEATRE

Saturday, the greatest circus picture ever made, "Spangles," with Marion Nixon, Pat O'Malley, Gladys Brockwell and Hobart Bosworth. The tang of the sawdust, the roar of the hungry beasts, the fearless trapeze artists, bareback riders, clowns, midgets, o thrilling chariot race, the elephants running amuck, striking terror into the hearts of thousands. It's all in this greatest, most tremendously spectacular circus picture. It is a picture for the whole family, and the children will rave over it. A comedy, scenic and news weekly on the same bill. Sunday and Monday Anna Q. Nilsson and Leiws Stone in "Midnight Lovers," with Chester Conklin. Sky marriages were the thing in those days, but when the matrimonial motor stalled, connubial sparking turned to sputtering, the writing on the sky road, "I love you," but the writing on the wall said, watch your wife. For while he was roughing it in no mon's land she was bluffing it in blighty. Fables and a Glide Cook comedy.

Tuesday and Wednesday, Constance Talmadge in "Venus of Venice." It is a story of a hoydenish gypsy of the waterways whose capacity for thievery and mischief is seemingly limitless. A madcap feared by police and citizenry alike, yet charming and lovable withal. And the added complication of an impulsive American artist who attempts to rehould her. The news weekly and Newlyweds-Snookums comedy.

Thursday and Friday the picture that thrilled New York for months, "Mare Nostrum," by the same author and director of the "Four Horsemen." It is a thrill marvel, a screen play of power and beauty, more than a year in the making, with a cast of thousands, filmed on the actual locations in Europe. You'll never forget the sinking of the submarine, the beauty facing the firing squad and the spy system. It is one of the few great pictures. The first chapter of "The Silent Flyer" and "Pink Elephants" comedy.

Shoes and stockings are being discarded by some of the younger set.

BEAUTIFUL POINT LOMA FINGER GIRDED WITH SPLENDID RING OF PRECIOUS STONES

In expressing his love and loyalty for Point Loma, where he has lived for more than eighteen years, Edgar F. Hastings gave admirable utterance to the following splendid sentiment at the Masonic educational meeting held on the evening of April 27, 1927, at the Point Loma high school:

POINT LOMA-OCEAN BEACH

By Edgar F. Hastings

(Contributed to "The Beach News")

Traveling from the Atlantic westward—onward, ever onward—through plains, mountains and deserts—San Diego is at last reached; and beyond San Diego is Point Loma; and westward still a little farther, Ocean Beach. Traveling from the Canadian border southward, through timbered mountains and fertile valleys, as far as you can go before again turning eastward, you come to Point Loma and Ocean Beach, where the purple waves caress and fondle the silver strand.

When looking for authentic information you consult the encyclopaedias—probably the Encyclopaedia Britannica—which informs you that Point Loma is one of the three most beautiful views in the world. It does not say which is the best, but we people fortunately residing on Point Loma know, of course, that it is the best!

Extending out to sea, finger-like, it protects one of the finest harbors in the world; and near the tip of that finger lies the beautiful Silver Gate.

The glorious silver sunrises and the gorgeous golden sunsets gird this finger with a splendid metal ring, which is studded with many precious stones: the pearl of La Playa, the ruby of Roseville, the opal of Loma Portal, and the diamond of Ocean Beach.

Come and dwell with us in this unsurpassed setting: the garden spot of the world; the most healthful and the loveliest spot on God's green footstool—Point Loma.

Another Dog Race

One of the events of the past week at Mission Beach, was the "dog race" which was held last Saturday afternoon in front of the old bath house. Malcome Donnelly's "Duke," a thoroughbred Collie, won the first prize of $1.50; George Marler's Fido, another Collie, came in second and won a purse of $1.06; and Helen Roberts, with her "Police Dog" won the third prize of $1.00. The starters held the dogs while Malcome Donnelly, the promoter, held a fine oit of meat dangling in his fingers to entice the animals to run, and they ran, one of them into the ocean, but he thought better with that bit of meat dangling and made a side turn and came in third. It was great sport, and another race will be run next Saturday, May 21st, at the same time and place.

ADS ARE HONOR PLEDGES

O O O

If you got a letter from any merchant who advertises in this paper, signed with his own name, you would believe what he told you in that letter, wouldn't you?

Of course you would. You know our advertisers would not tell you an untruth in a letter.

Well, you receive letters from them every time you get an issue of this paper. For the advertisements they print in this paper are just as personal and are written with the same degree of honesty as if they were letters to you, written in ink.

Whenever a merchant signs his name to an advertisement, he pledges himself to back up every statement in that ad just as he would back up his promise made in a letter.

The only difference between an ad and a letter is that in an ad the merchants use our type and ink for writing you instead of using a pen and ink. It's quicker to address all of our readers at one time. But the fact that we do the printing and mailing does not detract from the personal nature of the message. Read the ads!

COUNTY DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATION

The San Diego County Development association had a rousing meeting at their big dinner gathering at Carlsbad on Tuesday night at 6:30. A wonderful rabbit dinner was served with all the fixings, and the dessert was avocado ice cream with cake, the dinner being served by the Woman's club of Carlsbad. Everyone was loud in the praises of the good eats, from the fried rabbit to the avocado ice cream. An election of officers was held and genial "Bill Hart" was made president. A. L. Swinehart, vice-president, and Wallace Walters was re-elected as secretary. A topical song written by Mrs. McPherson, of Carlsbad, was greatly appreciated. The next meeting will be at Fallbrook in June, with Encinitas following in July.

BIG AUDIENCE APPROVES "MRS. TUBBS OF SHANTYTOWN" AT STRAND

Under the auspices of the Ocean Beach Parent-Teacher association, the production of "Mrs. Tubbs of Shantytown" by local players last Monday night at the Strand theatre proved a most decided success in every way. The house was packed and even standing room was at a premium. The sale of seats exceeded the great seating capacity and arrangements were made for refunding admission fees to late-comers, while plans are being perfected for a repetition of the performance in the near future.

The excellent histrionic ability displayed by the members of the local cast proved a most agreeable surprise to their many friends, and the entire performance moved very smoothly and highly creditable.

In the leading role of Mrs. Mollie Tubbs, the sunshine of Shantytown, Miss Kate Spani gave an ideal presentation and easily proved her wonderful ability for directing children. Mrs. Olive Kline won most deserved commendation for her excellent interpretation of Miss Clingie Vine, a real genteel boarder who proved a Lady Bountiful in the happy finale. Mrs. W. B. Leonard scored a decided hit as Mrs. Ellen Hickey, a neighbor who hates to gossip yet manages to tell it all very interestingly. Mrs. Stanley Burne was accorded much favor as the pretty young school teacher, while W. I. Newman acted the part of a young census taker, in a very befitting and natural manner. Mr. Turner B. Kline as an exacting landlord and corner grocery man looking for a wife for the fourth time, portrayed the role true to life. And here's a professional secret (he even let his whiskers grow for a week in order to look the part) and he achieved success in personal appearance as well as in theatrical characterization.

A half dozen bright and cheerful children, representing characters ranging in ages from three to twelve years, won hearty applause for their individual ability and collective cleverness. They included Edith Swink, Robert Stahlheber, Jimmie Deuell, Anna Belle Leonard, Cleo Schuh and Betty Busby, all of whom proved immensely enjoyable.

And if you were there, you certainly liked 'em singly and in groups; and if not present, you certainly missed a highly delightful entertainment by the young folks and grown-ups alike.

Throughout the performance a special pleasing local atmosphere was found in the naming of home folks and community business places at appropriate occasions.

Riverside has maintained its normal growth during the last twelve months with only degrees of progress to distinguish one year from another in the steady climb as a municipality of residential and industrial importance. Known for its Mission Inn, its Mount Rubidoux, Magnolia avenue and as a city of trees, Riverside has many other accomplishments. Its building program during the last few months has been exceptional. The Toot Was Just in Time

By AD SCHUSTER

TOM ALLING rested his rifle on his knee. "Just watch me plug that lizard." His drowsy companion jumped up, struck the barrel and the bullet went wild. The lizard scurried under a rock. "Don't get excited, Tom, just listen."

There were four of us once who went hunting and fishing way back in the woods. We had horses with us and an automobile and were equipped to spend a month by ourselves. It was the wildest and most lonesome place I ever saw and one with the largest mixture of scenery. The hills rose up on both sides of a valley filled with white and smooth rocks so that, except for the few cypresses which seemed to break right through the stone, it looked like a river had petrified. Well, never mind the scenery, except that when night came there were queer shadows and weird cries and the moon lighted up the white rocks in a ghastly sort of way.

The auto belonged to a feller I'll call Bill, and Bill was the best hunter of the lot. He was always taking long excursions on his horse and we never thought it strange when he turned in late. We just built a big fire to show him the way, pulled up our blankets and went to sleep. In the morning Bill was there.

One night when there wasn't any wind and the cries of a mountain lion were sending creepy echoes up the valley we stayed awake a little longer than usual, hoping Bill would show up. I guess we all felt uneasy, but not a one would admit it. I know I felt like a small boy sleeping outdoors for the first time, but I shut my eyes, told myself not to be a fool, and went to sleep. So did the rest. Long about midnight there was a loud howl close by and we all sat up. Then somebody laughed, stopped suddenly, and the moon shone on three scared faces. The howl was Bill's automobile a few yards away. Its horn was tooting and there was nobody there to press the button!

Bill's cot was empty. The shrill sound of the horn rose and fell and it seemed somehow like it was a cry of distress. Somebody, I don't remember which, ran over, punched on the button and fooled with the thing, but it kept on screaming. We went back by the fire, pulled on our clothes and nobody said a word.

"Bill! You don't suppose something has happened to him? He ought to be back by now."

That is what we all thought. It may seem queer now, but back there in that mountain moonlight with the white rocks staring it was as if that automobile of Bill's had awakened us for some reason. We were all getting ready to go out and look for him and as we left, each following a trail, that horn quit. Then it was deathly silent and we shoved along. The first who found Bill was to fire a gun.

I found him. He had taken the short cut up the slope to camp and his horse had slipped on the rocks. There he was pinned under the animal and his face was twisted at the moon. I pulled him out and fired the gun. We carried him back to the camp and after a while he got over it. A few more hours, though, if it hadn't been for that horn, and he would have been dead.

"But the lizard? Where does he come in?"

"Next morning we examined the automobile and found a lizard tangled up in the wiring of the horn. In his struggles to get out he had short-circuited the thing. Call it whatever you wish but, if you are a friend of mine, use a tin can or something that ain't alive for a target."

First Iron Steamers Had to Win Approval

Experiments with iron steamships were made before 1843, but not until that year was a vessel of considerable size constructed of iron. The first iron steamer built was the Aaron Manby, but this was not a large craft. The Alburkah, 70 feet long, with a 16-horsepower engine, was built in 1831. She drew three feet six inches, and her successful navigation disproved the idea that a light draft was dangerous, according to W. Clark Russell in "The Ship: Her Story." The first iron steamers ever to engage in warfare were the Nemesis and the Phlegethon. They took part in the China war of 1842. The Great Britain, launched July 19, 1843, was the first large iron steamer to enter the New York-Liverpool run. She was 322 feet long, 48 feet broad, 31½ feet deep, and had a burden of 3,270 tons. She was equipped with four diagonal cylinders, each 80 inches in diameter, with a 72-inch stroke. Her horsepower was 1,500.

Noise Counts for Little

The man who makes a lot of noise seldom makes anything else. In some ways he is like an empty vessel pounded with an iron spoon. It's well to remember that "deep waters run silently yet powerfully" and to act accordingly.—Grit.

CUTE PANTIE PLAY-FROCKS; GINGHAM'S PLACE IN MODE

LIKE so many little animated daffodils and buttercups will wee tots be looking this Maytime and summer time, too, for Dame Fashion is informing mothers that until further notice yellow will rank as one of the very popular colors for little folks' dresses.

This preference for yellow is evidenced throughout all fabric showings especially ginghams, organdies, voiles and dotted swisses. Included also in the list are dainty printed dimities and piques, with flowerets scattered all over their surface or perhaps dots or pin-stripes of yellow. A piping of solid yellow, or cuffs and collars of yellow add a charming touch to frocks made of the printed fabrics. If the dress be white then cunning embroidery or applique in yellow is suggested or smocking, fagoting or cross-stitch with yellow thread or floss.

An important item in the wee tots' wardrobe is the pantie-dress. The one in the picture is made of yellow and white gingham. The collar, cuffs and pockets are finished with a buttonhole stitch worked in black and white floss. The tiny duck in the center is embroidered in black and white.

An item of importance to remember in connection with children's dresses is this—sleeves are most often of the raglan type. A reason for this is that the peasant-type frock is "all the rage" for little girls this season and that the raglan sleeve is one of its characteristic features.

Smocking, fagoting and cross-stitching are being lavished on wearing apparel for youngsters. Thus is color introduced in all its gayest moods.

Two other phases of handcraft are applique and quilting effects. The former expresses itself in quaint animal figures and flowers and even picture-book scenes are worked out in applique. Plain color quilted with gay threads is very new as a trimming for juvenile clothes.

Youngsters are dressing in ensemble as well as grownups, according to the new styles coming in for summer. These include cunning printed sheer frocks, with hats of the same fabric. Quaint little bonnet shapes are shirred, having quite large scoop brims. Some are lace-trimmed, placing little rosettes of valenciennes edging about the crown and brim.

Romance in fashionland! Gingham, yes, simple everyday gingham, has been promoted from the plebeian class into the ranks of the aristocrat. After all these years spent in the kitchen, the schoolroom, the nursery and the playground, as a medium for housedress, bungalow apron and play-frock, behold! gingham is making its debut at the country club, on the golf links, on the tennis courts and even on the avenues and the boulevards.

Popular Outfit for the Small Tot.

It is a fact, society is turning out in gingham frocks at many a smart daytime event now that the mode is high-lighting cotton weaves as of outstanding style appeal. It is really amazing to see the smart styling which fashionists are giving to gingham.

In this picture are two exponents of the new gingham movement. A pin-check in the popular black-and-white makes an arresting ensemble costume as illustrated to the left. A three-quarter length coat of the gingham is posed over a straight one-piece dress of the same fabric. The vertical tucks suggest a panel at both back and front. Since it is the proper thing to line the coat throughout, in this instance a soft melon shade of gingham has been used for the purpose.

Two Pretty Gingham Gowns.

The eton jacket suit to the right is made of hunter's green gingham with a fine block design outlined with a single thread of lighter green to which the bias banded trimmings have been matched.

That which is true of gingham is true of all cotton weaves—they have taken a place of prominence in the mode. Cotton prints which have every appearance of silk are made up with painstaking care, their appearance warranting their wear at any before-six-o'clock occasions. Printed cotton crepes are also a very smart item. Bouffant frilly organdies for summer evening wear are in anticipation, too.

TWO HOMES MADE HAPPY

By Women Who Used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I think it is the most wonderful medicine I ever tried," is the statement made by Mrs. Goldie Shoup of St. Joseph, Illinois. She declares that after taking the Compound she is in better health than before.

Mrs. J. Storms of 29 Lane Street, Paterson, N. J., writes: "I cannot speak too highly of your medicine and I recommend it to all my friends."

These statements were taken from two enthusiastic letters which tell of the help that has been received from using the Vegetable Compound. Both Mrs. Shoup and Mrs. Storms were in a run-down condition which caused them much unhappiness. When women are suffering from lack of strength and from weakness, their own life and that of their family is affected. When they feel well and strong and are able to do their housework easily, happy homes are the result.

CALIFORNIA THEATER

Bebe Daniels as a caballero—a swaggering, swash-buckling, hard-riding son of the pampas!

That is the keynote of the stirring picture now showing on the New California screen. "Senorita," as the picture is titled, is Paramount's latest story written especially for Miss Daniels by John McDermott, and the finished production is by far the finest bit of work which this vigorous and beautiful star has yet done.

Supporting her in the male lead is James Hall, who gives a finshed performance which does him credit and adds much to the entertainment value of the picture. Joseph Swickard has a fine character part, and William Powell makes a most convincing villain. Clarence Badger directed the picture, and there is no question but that he did a most excellent job of it.

Fanchon and Marco have come to the front again with one of their most beautiful stage presentations. This week's attraction is their "Dancing Master Idea", a vivid and colorful dance idea which has the world-famous team of Bankoff and Cannon heading the cast.

Ivan Bankoff, who has earned a reputation for the quality of his classic interpretations, has for a partner Miss Beth Cannon, whose rapid rise to dancing stardom has been the cause for much approving comment. Barnett and Clark, champion black bottom team, and Miss Gladys James, New York singer, are also hailed on the same program.

BALBOA THEATRE

If to lapse into a card room vernacular—two queens and three kings make a full house, the success of Herbert Brenon's new Paramount feature "The Telephone Girl" is assured in advance. Madge Bellamy and May Allison are the queens and Holbrook Blinn, Warner Baxter and Lawrence Gray the kings.

Neither Miss Bellamy or Miss Allison need any introduction. Madge heroined in "The Iron Horse," "Sandy", "Ankles Preferred" and a number of other films while May appeared in "Men of Steel" and "The Greater Glory."

As for Holbrook Blinn and his screen activities, he acted in "The Masked Woman" not so long ago; as for his stage roles, they've been many, none better known than portrayals in "The Bad Man" and "The Play's the Thing." Warner Baxter created quite a stir of approval as the native in "Aloma of the South Seas" and his enacting of "The Great Gatsby" stamped him as being above the average leading man. Lawrence Gray, fifth of the quintet, Gloria Swanson's hero in two pictures, was also featured in "Love 'em and Leave 'em" and "The American Venus."

"The Telephone Girl" is booked at the Balboa Theatre for Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, and will be followed on Wednesday by "See You in Jail", First National's latest farce comedy, which will run for the balance of the week.

"See You in Jail" is a highly entertaining picture which carefully evades the possibility of overlooking any opportunities for laughs, and it has left a long trail, of chuckles behind it ever since its first release a short time ago.

Jack Mulhall and Alice Day are cast in the stellar roles.

WOMEN

"A charming figure on a moonlit balcony, a rose in her hair and a great love in her heart," was the description given of Nicaraguan women by Dr. Don Alejandro Cesar, Nicaraguan minister to the United States, before the second welfare conference of the Women's Universal Alliance. The minister drew a sharp contrast between the women of Nicaragua and the United States, describing the former as "the perfect mother and wife."

Whatever criticism might have been offered to the women of the United States was softened by describing her as the most charming of women, with French chic, Spanish fire, Nordic ability and American charm.

LUNCH BOX APPETIZERS

By CAROLINE B. KING
Culinary expert and lecturer on household science.

Biscuit Chicken Sandwiches

Make baking powder biscuits cutting them rather larger than usual, bake in a hot oven. Split, butter and spread with chopped chicken, mixed with a very little white sauce well seasoned. Put together in sandwich fashion and wrap when cool in paraffin paper. Ham or any preferred meat may be used in place of chicken.

Prune Rice Puddings

Wash a tablespoonful of rice and cover with a quart of milk, place in a moderate oven, in half an hour add one-half cupful sugar, one-half teaspoonful vanilla, and one-half teaspoonful salt. Stir and cook slowly for an hour then add a cupful of prunes cooked in the usual manner, then drain, pit, and cut in small pieces. Continue baking one hour longer. For the lunch box fill paper drinking cups with the pudding when cold, sift a little powered sugar over the top, and cover with paraffin paper.

Peanut Butter and Lettuce Sandwiches

Spread thinly sliced whole wheat or graham bread lightly with peanut butter, and arrange lettuce leaves, washed and carefully dried, on half the slices. Put together sandwich fashion, press lightly and wrap in paraffin paper.

Stuffed Eggs

Hard cook the eggs, and drop them in cold water, remove shells, and cut in halves lengthwise. Take out the yolks and chop fine, adding any cold ham or bacon that may be at hand. Salmon or sardines may also be used. Season nicely and moisten with a little mayonnaise. Fill the cavities in the eggs, and put the halves together, wrap in paraffin paper twisting the ends slightly to hold firmly.

Pickled Prunes

Wash and soak one pound of prunes in a quart of cold water, then place over the fire in the same water, adding the juice of a lemon and the thinly pared rind; also six cloves and a small piece of stick cinnamon. Simmer one hour, then add a cupful of sugar and one-fourth cupful of vinegar. Continue to cook for fifteen minutes longer. Remove the spices when the prunes are done.

Brown Sugar Cookies

Cream a cupful of butter with two cupfuls of brown sugar, add a teaspoonful of vanilla, two well beaten eggs, one-third cup of milk in which three-fourths teaspoonful of soda is dissolved, and add gradually three cupfuls of flour. Drop by spoonfuls on buttered tins, bake in a moderate oven. A cup of chopped black walnuts or other nutmeats may be added to this recipe for variety.

Mother's Cook Book

If we would do something worth while we must first realize that we must be something. We must be able to think, plan, create, not be a mere echo of what some one else has done.—Lloyd.

"Give us, oh, give us the woman who sings at her work."

A FEW DAINTIES

HERE are a few dainties that will appeal to the majority of tastes:

Raisin Puffs.

Beat two eggs, one cupful of sugar creamed with one-half cupful of butter, one cupful of milk, two cupfuls of flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, mix and add one cupful of raisins. Steam in buttered cups for forty-five minutes. Serve with liquid sauce or cream and sugar.

Best Custard Pie.

Take two cupfuls of milk, three eggs, reserving the whites of two for the meringue, one tablespoonful of flour mixed, one-third of a cupful of sugar, add nutmeg to flavor and bake in a pastry-lined pan. Cover with the meringue slightly sweetened and brown in a moderate oven. Serve cold.

Ginger Cookies.

Take one cupful of sugar, one-fourth cupful of molasses, one and one-fourth cupfuls of fat melted, one-half cupful of cold coffee, two tablespoonfuls of ginger, two eggs one teaspoonful of soda and one teaspoonful of cinnamon. Dissolve the soda in the coffee and add salt. Mix with flour as soft as possible and let stand one hour in the ice chest or a cold place to stiffen before rolling and baking.

Chocolate Cake.

Take one cupful of brown sugar, one-fourth cupful of shortening, one-fourth cupful of sour milk, one teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of vanilla, one egg and one and one-fourth cupfuls of flour. Add two squares of chocolate melted in one-half cupful of boiling water the last thing. Bake in layers and put together with orange filling or with plain boiled frosting.

Indian Pudding.

Add three-fourths of a cupful of cornmeal to a quart of boiling milk, cook for twenty minutes, stirring occasionally, add one-half cupful of molasses, a teaspoonful of salt, two eggs well beaten and one cupful of chopped suet. Put into a baking dish, add a quart of cold milk and one-half cupful of raisins. Stir for the first half of the cooking dredge with flour, which with the suet will make a rich brown crust over the pudding when done.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

THE MOMENTOUS MOMENT

TO EVERY man and woman, whether of high or low estate, there comes at some period of his or her existence a time when the future wavers in the balance.

It is at this turning point where the quality of each sex is tested and the dross is separated from the real metal.

Every moment somewhere, some one is brought abruptly face to face with a new condition where a wrong decision or an imprudent step may change life's prospects in the twinkling of an eye.

When two persons of any grit and spirit clash, differ in opinion over some trifle, exhibit signs of unreasonableness and anger, there is danger in the air which both should do their utmost to avoid.

The employee who flares up at the well-meaning counsel of his or her superior, showing symptoms of pique and rebellious resentment in action and speech, is getting perilously near the place where his or her future may be wrecked for all time.

No one ever regrets sealing his lips when he is angry.

Whether he realizes it or not he may be facing the momentous moment when a life friendship is about to be broken, a position in society lost, or a prized business connection severed which no regret in after days can restore.

From the first intimation of rising passion, if we would go safely through the threatening crisis, we should with all the force we can command grip our spirit and play the mute.

If we could do this, we would save many a heartache, many hours of humiliating depression, and dispense with many a burden there is no necessity of our bearing.

The truth is that in most of us the heart is proud, the neck is stiff, and the will, especially when opposed, is as unyielding as the granite hills. And at the crucial moment, with much more bravado than usual, we give loud emphasis to this state of our mind without considering the fearful cost we shall be called upon some day to pay.

In this way, if in no other, do the sons and daughters of Eve bear a strong resemblance. And thus for one reason or another do the greater number of them do foolish things at the momentous moment and turn their backs on blessings everywhere, waiting for their cheerful acceptance.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"ALL IS GRIST THAT COMES TO MY MILL"

WE ARE all familiar with this expression to signify "nothing goes to waste with me." A reporter, cautioned by his city editor to let nothing that makes news slip by him, was heard to reply, "Don't worry, all is grist that comes to my mill!" And in the variety of applications in which the phrase is employed we must not forget the cook famed for her hash who boasts that "All is grist that comes to my mill."

The saying comes to us from the parlance of the flour mill where "grist" means all the grain that is brought to the mill at one time to be ground up into meal. The term signifies literally and in the broader sense, material to be worked on or utilized. For everything that is brought to the mill is crushed and ground up together. Hence the popular figurative use of the phrase "All is grist that comes to my mill" is easily comprehensible.

UP

By SYDNEY J. BURGOYNE

BEWARE of the folks who keep crying "Down"
With everything under the sun;
Down with power, with wealth and renown,
And the man who's nobly won!

It isn't the spirit that "downs" by might,
Though the wrong be real, my friend,
That is going to win the battle for right,
And make injustice end.

It's the kindly spirit of "Up With Truth!"
And "Up" with the friendly hand
That will bring to men the hope of youth
And spread good cheer through the land.

It's the spirit of "Up" with peace of good-will,
With fellowship kind and true,
That is bound to make this old world fill
With joy and success for you!

It's "Up" with the spirit that understands
And measures a man's true worth;
That is going to bind with golden bands
Brother to brother on earth.

It's "Up" with the banner of "Love for All"—
The mighty ones and the weak—
That will make oppression and evil fall
And bring the blessing you seek.

For everyone has a chance to rise
And no man more than the rest;
"To live and let live" is just and wise,
But to live and help live—is best!

So "Up" is the watchword to which to cling,
For every creed and clan;
And the spirit of "Up With the Good" will bring
The brotherhood of man!

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

AN ITCHING PALM

IF THE palm of your right hand itches you are about to receive money. "And you yourself are much condemned to have an itching palm," says Brutus to Cassius in Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar." The superstition is venerable and flourished by the Nile and the Tiber before it saw the Thames or the Hudson. A Greco-Roman amulet of a hand in the British museum has carved on the palm an altar with three cakes, an offering to the gods invoking prosperity.

When we use the expression "an itching palm" as Brutus used it to Cassius, and as we use it with regard to our friends, it means that the person referred to is avaricious and not particular as to how he comes by his money. But when our own palm itches—why, that's another matter: we content ourselves with saying that money is coming to us and ignore the details.

The whole superstition is one of suggestion and association. It originated before the days of paper money, when all money was "hard." A coin taken in the hand presses upon the palm as the hand closes upon it. The sensation produced becomes identified with possession. Any tingling of the palm subconsciously recalls the sensation, thereby arousing the idea of money in hand with which it is identified. The natural wish for money makes it a prognostic. It is the right palm that prophesies because, generally, we use the right hand in accepting money.

THE WORLD'S GREAT EVENTS

ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

Garibaldi

A STOCKY, bearded man was arrested on a charge of so-called treason. He was Giuseppe Garibaldi, son of a poor Italian fisherman, and himself a sailor by occupation. In 1834, when only twenty-seven, he joined the "Young Italy" society, was implicated in a plot to free his country from the Austrian yoke, and was condemned to death.

"This ends your career, my friend," remarked one consolatory jailor.

"You are mistaken," retorted Garibaldi, coolly. "My destiny is not fulfilled. Italy's not yet free. I shall live."

He made good his words by escaping from prison. He found his way to South America, where he plunged at once into the warfare that convulsed that continent, and repeatedly won fame by his efforts in behalf of the weaker side. He was taken prisoner by the Brazilian government, escaped, eloped with a beautiful Creole, successively picked up a living as cattleman, ship broker and teacher of mathematics, organized an Italian legion and served as naval commander for Montevideo in the latter's war with Buenos Ayres. Then he returned to Italy and, raising a body of irregular troops, again harried the Austrians.

Italy was divided into a number of independent and semi-independent principalities, including a group of states under the direct temporal rule of the pope. But the northern part of the country was in Austria's hands, while nearly all of it was more or less under Austrian domination. Austria bullied and oppressed the hapless land cruelly. As a result, Mazzini and other patriots formed a horde of secret societies with the hope of freeing their downtrodden fatherland and joining its separate states into one strong union. In 1830, 1834 and at other times revolts sprang up, only to be crushed with an iron hand.

The Carbonari, "Young Italy" and similar, patriotic leagues continued their efforts, and in 1848 Garibaldi and his fellow revolutionists captured Rome, forcing the pope to fly to Gaeta. They formed a republic in which Garibaldi and Mazzini were supreme. But Napoleon III (who had earlier pledged his support to the revolutionists) sent a French army to the pope's aid. Garibaldi gallantly held Rome against the stronger foe for thirty days, but was at last forced to evacuate the city. Again Garibaldi was forced to flee from Italy. He now came to New York, where he remained for over a year, working as a candle maker and living on Staten Island. Later he was captain of a Pacific merchantman. In 1854 he returned to Italy and bought a farm on the island of Caprero, off the Sardinian coast. But he was not allowed to remain long in seclusion.

Charles Albert, king of Sardinia, had striven to shake off the Austrian yoke, but was beaten, 1849, at Novara. Heartbroken, he abdicated on the field of battle in favor of his son, Victor Emmanuel, duke of Savoy (grandfather of the present king of Italy), a man of simple tastes, who preferred mountaineering and hunting to the pomp of state. Italy was now at lowest ebb. But for Victor Emmanuel and Garibaldi it might still be in semi-slavery to foreign power. But in 1859 Victor Emmanuel, refusing Austria's command to disarm his little kingdom, made an alliance with Napoleon III. Together at Solferina, Magenta and elsewhere they inflicted terrific defeats on Austria, and won the war, the great province of Lombardy being ceded to Sardinia, while Victor Emmanuel, in payment, turned over his own ancestral duchy of Savoy to France. The tide had turned. Other principalities—Bologna, Tuscany, Parma, Modena and Romagna (the last-named being one of the "papal states")—annexed themselves to Sardinia. The pope promptly excommunicated everyone concerned in the reform.

Garibaldi left his seclusion and, with 1,000 "red-shirt men," invaded Sicily. In less than three months he had freed the island. He was acclaimed a hero on his return to Italy, but refused all gifts and honors and went quietly back to his farm. The freeing of Sicily and lower Italy by Garibaldi caused the fall of the king of Naples, an oppressor and foe to liberty and lopped off more papal provinces. Thus by 1861 all Italy, with the exception of Venetia and the few remaining papal provinces, was a united kingdom under Victor Emmanuel's rule.

In 1866, when Prussia and Italy fought Austria, Venetia was ceded to Italy; and in 1870, when the Franco-Prussian war caused the withdrawal of French troops from Rome, Victor Emmanuel annexed the last of the papal states, guaranteeing spiritual independence to the pope and himself becoming first king of the free and united Italy.

Garibaldi, meantime, had won fresh fame by invading the Tyrol in the war of 1866, and had fought gallantly in the Franco-Prussian war. Still declining the office, ranks and honors tendered him, he returned to his island farm, where, crippled and broken in health, he died in 1882.

This man of the people was the central and most picturesque figure in the long struggle for Italian liberty, and was also the Nineteenth century's highest type of disinterested patriot.

Indians Display Humor

Inditns have their humorous side just the same as white men. They play the stone game to see which will have to "foot it" over the first divide into the valley beyond to round up the ponies and bring them back for saddle use. The one that fails to guess which hand holds the telltale pebble is "it," while the lucky guesser lights his pipe and reclines in ease to laugh at the others' expense. Some of the Indians of the Glacier National park reservation also use this old sleight-of-hand pastime as a gambling game for trivial stakes. They are quite as dexterous with the small stone as the stage magician is in palming and passing a silver coin.

Woman's Lucky Day

After an hour's reading of the Bible, Mrs. C. M. Otel of Glendale, Calif., started to tend plants in her back yard. As she stepped outdoors an airplane crashed into the roof of her home, burying the Bible and chair with debris and parts of the flying machine. The pilot and his passengers were severely injured.

Tunneling by Electricity

The new tunnel of the Great Northern railway under the Cascade mountains is literally being driven by electricity. Blasting shots planted in the rock are fired by it, shoveling machines are driven by it, rock and dirt are hauled out and materials hauled into the bore by six, ten and twenty-ton mine-type electric locomotives, and lighting and some special heating in and around the job are all done electrically.

How Are Your Outdoors Good Manners?

Miss Genevieve O'Connell of the American Nature association receiving the first entries in the National Outdoor Good Manners Cartoon contest.

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

WITHIN the next month or so, millions of Americans will begin to go a-gypsying. What are their outdoor good manners going to be this year? If we are to judge by past years, the manners of some of them will be exceedingly bad. They will set forth in their cars for distant parts of the land and en route they will pitch their camps pretty much where they please with a fine disregard for "Keep Out" and "No Trespassing" signs. They will hack down trees and shrubs, pull up wild flowers by the roots, despoil bird nests, pollute streams and springs, leave their campsites littered with bottles, cans, boxes and old newspapers and in general deface the landscape.

Pretty strong indictment, isn't it? But the sad part of it is that it is only too true of a large part of our summer-population-on-wheels. If it weren't true it wouldn't have been necessary for various official and semi-official agencies to have taken the steps that they have taken to curb the activities of a certain type of motor gypsy who leaves his good manners at home when he starts out on a vacation. Among these agencies are the American Automobile association, which has appealed to the motorists themselves to help keep the term "motor gypsy" from being a term of reproach; several states have found it necessary to pass laws to prevent the extinction of wild flowers; state highway boards and state boards of health have passed strict road and camp regulations, as have municipal authorities; and forest rangers in our national forests and national park officials have found it necessary to "bear down hard" on the careless ones who litter up campsites and are negligent about taking the necessary precautions against starting forest fires.

But passing laws will not solve the problem of the American whose outdoor manners are bad. The only hope lies in educating him and as a part of the general campaign of education the American Nature association, whose headquarters are in Washington and whose president is Arthur Newton Pack, has announced a National Outdoors Good Manners Cartoon contest. The object of the contest is to obtain from cartoonists all over the country, both professional and amateur, their expression of the need for roadside beautification and the desirability of preventing various desecrations of nature's beauties.

The contest has the indorsement of the American Association of Cartoonists and Caricaturists, of which Eugene Zimmerman is president, and at his suggestion it is in two divisions, one for professionals and one for amateurs. The contest for professionals closed on April 1, but amateurs have until June 1 in which to submit their entries. For them there will be prizes of $25, $10 and $5, with ten honorable mention awards of $1 each. In addition the editor of Cartoons Magazine is offering a year's subscription free to each of the 13 successful contestants and the American Association of Cartoonists will give free a technical letter of criticism and advice to the winners of the first three prizes.

The judges of the contest are: J. N. Darling (Ding), Dorman H. Smith, C. Kessler, R. Bruce Horsfall, art director of Nature Magazine, published by the American Nature association, and Arthur Newton Pack, president of the association. All entries in the amateur contest should be sent before June 1 to Cartoons, Nature Magazine, 1214 Sixteenth street N. W., Washington. The cartoons must be in black and white so that they can be reproduced.

The campaign against billboards, the cartoon contest of the American Nature association, the tree-planting campaign of the American Tree association, the work of the Audubon societies and of the Izaak Walton league and dozens of other organizations are all a part of a concerted movement to restore and guarantee the perpetuation of our natural resources and scenic beauties. Their work is valuable, but it can never be entirely successful until every American feels a sense of individual responsibility for preserving the gifts of nature and acts upon that feeling.

Several years ago the late John Dickinson Sherman, a writer noted for his advocacy of all movements looking to the preservation of American natural resources, formulated an "Outing Platform for Sportsmen." It was a fine expression of the creed of the outdoors man and woman, as a reading of it (it is reproduced herewith) will show. Those who read and practice its principles can easily and satisfactorily answer the question of "What are your outdoors good manners going to be this year?"

THE SONG OF OUR SONGBIRDS!

OUTING PLATFORM FOR GOOD SPORTSMEN

By JOHN DICKINSON SHERMAN

We will "go light." We will take what we need rather than what we may use. We will use our brains. We will stand on our own feet. We will study Nature. We will achieve something.

We will not shirk. We will not sulk. We will do our share of the work cheerfully. We will meet the challenge of the wilderness like sportsmen—the gentlemen of out-of-doors.

We will drive carefully and at reasonable speed. We will obey all local traffic rules. We will observe an etiquette of the road based on the Golden Rule.

We will remember that our big game, game birds and fishes, our forests, wild flowers and wild places are going fast; that posterity has its rights and sportsmanship its responsibilities.

We will keep the camp clean. We will burn or bury our garbage. We will not pollute sparkling lake and running stream. We will have pure drinking water and well-cooked food.

We will treat the market-hunter and game-hog as they deserve; they are a stench in the nostrils of the sportsman. We ourselves will take only what we need from forest and stream.

We will give all game a fair chance. We will not chase down game by motor vehicles or shoot birds except when they are on the wing. We will obey all game laws, national and state.

The catching of fish is not all of fishing. We will avoid heavy tackle and gang-hooks. We will give preference to the fly with trout and handle those under size with a wet hand.

We will take from the forest to pitch camp, to make the cooking-fire hot and the camp-fire bright and warm. But we will not needlessly or wantonly mar the fair face of Nature.

We will set no forest fires. Every fire kindled will be watched while burning and be put out before it is left. Matches and tobacco will be handled by us with scrupulous care.

We will relax and be our natural selves and rest, remembering that Nature has many a lesson of honesty, of simplicity and of contentment. So shall we return better men.

We will repay the hospitality of the wild places by promoting the preservation of the forests and of wild life and the creating of additional game preserves and national parks.

Historic Battlefield

Corunna is the name of a place famous in the history of British arms. Corunna is a small but flourishing seaport with a good harbor situated on the northwestern coast of Spain. During the early years of the Peninsula war, carried on to free Spain and Portugal from Napoleon, Sir John Moore, with a small British army, fell back upon Corunna when pursued by two armies, each larger than his own. The enemy was unable to cut off his retreat, and having reached Corunna, Moore turned upon his pursuers and inflicted upon them a signal defeat, but Moore was killed just as victory was secured. This was on January 16, 1809.

Not All Afraid of Snakes

Most of the wild animals, or their young, although the latter may be born in captivity, show fear of snakes. But when we try the experiment upon a human baby we see a remarkable contrast. The small human being will look upon the wriggling creature as a plaything, and without the slightest hesitation will take it into his arms and allow it to twirl itself around his body!

Matter of Strength

Most men do not lack strength, rather the will to use it, and knowledge how best to apply it. Physical strength needs the will to decide and the brain to direct, to insure use that will prove profitable.—Grit.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION

BONFIRE PARTY

The fairies had really been very busy, but Nick and Nancy enjoyed hearing about them as often as possible.

Around the Bonfire.

So Nancy said:

"Can't you tell us a story about the fairies tonight?"

"Yes, indeed," answered Daddy. "I could tell you really lots of stories about them—for they have been having all sorts of good times these nice days.

"But the other evening they had a fine party that was given just for them.

"The brownies, you know, love lots of excitement and lots going on all the time.

"They're always happy jumping about and enjoying life.

"So they sent out an invitation to the fairies which read:

"'The Brownies of Brownieland request the pleasure of the company of every one of the Fairies of Fairyland to a bonfire party on Thursday evening.

"'The Brownies expect no replies, as they expect every fairy will just come.'

"The fairies were much excited when they received this invitation.

"The Brownies' parties were always such fun, and a bonfire party—well, that was wonderful!

"The fairies hadn't thought of bonfires somehow for a long time.

"Now, the Fairy Queen said that they would have to arrive at the Brownies' party in some unusual manner, as that would please the Brownies.

"She suggested that they should engage some hopping toads to pull their chariots to the party.

"The fairies thought that was a splendid idea, and they engaged the hopping toads.

"The hopping toads were much honored at being chosen to take the fairies to the Brownies' party.

"When the great big bonfire was lighted the Brownies entertained the fairies by doing a lot of fancy dances around the bonfire.

"The hopping toads were allowed to stay and watch the bonfire, too.

"It was the most beautiful blaze, and how the fairies did love seeing it!

"But of course they were very careful not to go too near the fire.

"After it had died down and only the red embers remained the Brownies sang jingles, and the fairies joined in the chorus.

A Special Dance.

"And then, to the huge amusement of all, what should the hopping toads do but get up and do a special dance of their own!

"They wanted to feel that they were a part of the party, too.

"It was all the fairies could do to say 'good night' when it came time to leave, for they had had the most glorious time at the Brownies' bonfire party, and they thought the Brownies were the most wonderful party givers that ever lived.

"The Brownies were delighted that the fairies had had such a good time and were so pleased, for they thought that it was all a Brownie could ask for—to please the fairies."

Half Hour to Go

Uncle John walked into the sunroom as Richard sat on the floor adjusting his mechanical toys.

"Well, Dick, you're a good boy this morning, I hope," said the uncle, cheerily.

"I don't know, Uncle John," answered the boy, doubtfully. "There's half an hour yet."

Dick looked at the clock and saw that it was just half-past eleven.

She Overheard

"Lena," said little Mollie to her big sister at breakfast, "did you tell daddy?"

"Tell daddy what?"

"Why, you told Mr. Billing last night if he kissed you again you'd tell daddy—and he did it again. I saw him!"—Happy Magazine.

Chimpanzees Slow to Pick Up Human Speech

A chimpanzee might be taught to talk with its fingers, as deaf people talk, more easily than it could be taught to imitate sounds of human speech, in the opinion of Dr. Robert M. Yerkes and Margaret S. Child of the Institute of Psychology at Yale university. Several scientists who observed and studied higher apes have tried to teach them to say words, but without much success, these psychologists state in reporting in the Quarterly Review of Biology what is now known about anthropoid behavior. "Perhaps the chief reason for the ape's failure to develop speech is the absence of a tendency to imitate sounds," Doctor Yerkes explains. "Seeing strongly stimulates to imitation, but hearing seems to have no such effect." He believes that the sounds made by apes are not language, but are primarily emotional expressions, which are not learned by imitation.

Cause for Exasperation

"What exasperates me more than anything else about the boobies who differ with and from me on politics, religion, the money question, the tariff, weather onions and the gulf toward which we are rapidly and inevitably drifting," said J. Covered Wagon Pioneer Quickly Restored to Health

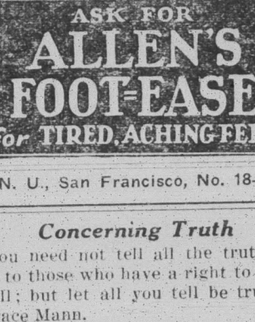
Was So Weak Could Scarcely Use Arms or Legs. Sacramento Resident a Victim of "Flu," Loses Weight and Vitality. Finds Long-Sought Relief. Strength Restored. Praises Tanlac.

Pioneer blood flows in the veins of Frank Rikert, Box 1035, R. R. 10, Sacramento, Calif., a prominent stockman who trekked over the rough, hazardous trails from Illinois in the early sixties. But even his brawn, muscle and splendid health broke under the strain of modern living. "Flu" left its mark and threatened his life.

"I didn't care whether I lived or died, I felt so badly," said Mr. Rikert, "when I began taking Tanlac. My strength had vanished, sapped by the 'Flu.' My arms and legs were so weak that they were almost useless. I couldn't even turn over in bed without help, so completely undermined was my strength and vitality.

"One night my wife saw the Tanlac advertisement in the paper and urged me to try it. I bought a bottle and started taking it, and I felt better right off. In a few weeks I was able to do all my work. Not only did my weakness disappear, but I actually gained twenty pounds, and I have felt fine ever since.

"Yes, sir, I firmly believe that Tanlac saved my life. Naturally, I'm so enthusiastic about Tanlac I am telling all my friends it's a great medicine and I'll praise it as long as I live."



Tanlac helps conquer ailments and builds up strength in famished bodies. It banishes pain and frees the system of poison caused by constipation and sluggish liver. It is Nature's own remedy made from roots, barks and herbs according to the famous Tanlac formula.

Begin taking Tanlac and enjoy the benefits of strength and golden health. The first bottle usually brings results that will surprise you. Ask your druggist for Tanlac—today! Over 40 million bottles sold.

THE EPICURE EATS PINEAPPLE

EPICURUS, the Greek philosopher, maintained that pleasure is the chief good.

No one seems to have recorded whether Epicurus found his food pleasure in ham or eggs, or quail on toast, but we have all known epicures. They tell us not of castles they saw in Spain but of Spanish sauces they ate there; not of the Alps they scaled in Italy, but of Italian spaghetti. To the epicure, Georgia is a place to eat corn bread, Boston a place to eat beans.

If it is a cold blustery day in a northern clime, the epicure who delights in physical comfort wants to be suddenly transported to the tropics. His food must have tropical flavor. The crisp cold air has bestowed on him a hearty appetite; he is hungry, but his food must have the flavor he craves.

Out of the magic of the epicure's kitchen, the chef produces a baked ham. Not an ordinary baked ham, but a savory entrée baked with delicious Hawaiian pineapple. Slices of the golden fruit garnish the platter; sweet potatoes lay alongside of it, baked with brown sugar and butter syrup which encrusts the ham; and the native fragrance of pineapple, combined with the sweet odor of real Virginia ham, makes this a dish which Epicurus himself would have found a pleasure and therefore a great good.

The epicure will take his pineapple in canned form, as he knows that all the golden, sun-ripened fruit of the Hawaiian plantations are packed into cans and shipped across the ocean to us as fresh as the day they were gathered from the fields. His palate demands this perfection of flavor rather than the taste of a fruit which has been picked green and allowed to ripen in the dark holds of ships.

The instinct of the epicure does not lead him far wrong in the choice of foods, for a food which flavors and makes a meal more palatable, usually helps digest it. Aside from being palatable with meat, pineapple makes meat more easily digested.

Pineapple contains an enzyme, bromelin, which is part of the digestive juice and which not only makes it a very digestible food in itself but helps digest other foods. Besides this, the natural sugar of the fruit is converted into energy twenty minutes after it enters the stomach. Pineapple also contains mineral salts which tone one's system and vitamins which make for growth.

This delight in tropical flavor has made pineapple a favorite not only with the epicure but with all types of people. With vegetables, in fruit cups, in salads and desserts, as well as with meats, has pineapple become popular, since it has been discovered that not only is the flavor of pineapple itself very pleasing, but it brings out the pleasing flavor of foods with which it is served.

A CLOSE CALL

Written for "The Beach News" By D. C. CROSBY, Ocean Beach.

No! I would not give up the fight though all the demons in the pit were combined against me; I would be a man; those dreams for the benefit of my fellows; those ideals that had kept me at work, must come true, and I would have that sweet home that I had planned.

So like Jacob of old, I wrestled until the break of day, and I had faith in Harry that he would find me in the morning, and arrange some way to get me off that wretched shelf; he must be sick, or he would have found me before dark. This thought disturbed me not a little.

The longest night has an end, and so did this, but I never knew one to last so long before or since. I was too stiff to roll off the ledge, and it took quite an effort to rise to my feet. It had rained all night and it was a dismal day that at last broke over my prison; the gray cold that took the place of the rain at daylight, seemed worse than ever.

I did not dare to exercise too vigorously by stamping my feet, for fear that my piece of the ledge also might break off, so I waited.

Early in the forenoon I saw some men on the table land across the bay looking in all directions, using glasses with which they swept the cliff where I stood, and I waved what was left of my hat, and was pleased to see that they had discovered me, for they all came to the edge of the cliff on the east side and made signals to me, and shouted something but could not be heard so far, with the waves booming so loud below.

Then all but one left in a hurry, and he remanied there and made encouraging signals to me which I understood. After about an hour he made signals to the top of the cliff over my head; then I knew why he was there. The rest of the men had gone after ropes, and when they arrived he was to direct them to the place where I stood.

They made a chair out of the ropes and lowered one of the men down to the ledge, but he kept a few feet from where I stood for fear of dropping stones upon me, and the man was to put me in the chair, rightly judging that I was too stiff to get in myself. They planned well, for the shower of stones that came down with him would not have helped me.

Well, he got me into the ropes and tied me in securely, and they hauled me to the top of the cliff, then lowered the ropes for him.

They had brought a horse and wagon in which they soon had me home. It was as I had feared, Harry was quite sick and did not think much about my absence until it was too late to find me, but he had a crew ready at daylight. These men living on the sea, and near the sea, often have experiences with shipwrecks much worse than mine, and they know just what to do. So they took charge of me and rubbed and massaged me for an hour or more and gave me something to drink and put me to bed, and next day I felt all right, only very weak; but I was well long before Harry, for he had quite a fever. I shall never forget the kindness and skill of those people who pulled us both through in the best of shape.

No doctors could have done better. There was still a chance for my dreams to come true in due time.
